AGED MAN SUED FOR WIFE'S LOVE

Young Mr. Tucker Demands $75,000 from the Aged Mr. Dudley.

DEFENDANT LONESOME.
His Interest in the Plaintiff's
Wife, He Testifies, Was Purely Paternal

The trial of a suit for $75,000 damages against Eugene V. Dudley for the alienation of the affections of the wife of Edw. H. Tucker, was begun to-day before Justice Dickey and a jury in the supreme Court, Brooklyn. Mr. Dudley, the defendant, is sixty years old, feeble, a railway supply agent, and extremely wealthy. Mr. Tucker, the plaintiff, is thirty-five years old, and in the insurance business. Mrs. Tucker is a pretty brunette, younger than her husband. Tucker charges that up to the time Dudley entered his life he and Mrs. Tucker had a happy little home at New Rochele. By gifts of staidkin garments, jewelry and other things of value, he says, Mrs. Tucker was won from him by the aged Dudley, causing him damage, mental and material, to the amount saved for.

"The witness stand during the most of the day. He swore that the interest in the Tuckers was purely maternal.

"He met them in New Rochele. At that time he had no near relatives or friends. He was lonesome. He took pleasure in the company of young Mr. and Mrs. Dudley. They wanted to move, and he advised and helped them, in renting a house in the town, and paying the rent and wages of the servants. Tucker paid for the food.

"Mrs. Tucker nursed him through two serious illnesses and he made her the beneficiary in his will. Never, he said,

Mr. Tucker finally separated from his wife and the husband object to her relations with him. He admitted that he took Mrs. Tucker on a long Southern trip, but said she went as his nurse and with the consent of her husband. Mrs. Tucker swore that her husband was cruel, that he had beaten her and had ordered her to be kind to Mr. Dudley.

While Mrs. Tucker was on the stand she began to cry. The aged defendant was so affected by her grief that he was unable to examine her and went aloft. "Here, your command," the court said. "Stop this you two. There is nothing a cry about."

After wiping his tears, put Mrs. Tucker asked at intervals all through

TRIED RESCUE OF PRISONER ON BROADWAY

Fleming Held On to His Men and Till His Yells Brought Help.

Considerable excitement was caused by the Broadway and Twenty-fourth street, near the Fifth Avenue and Albemarle hotels, this afternoon when two young men, arrested for disorderly conduct, were nearly freed from custody by a crowd of their friends.

Patrolman Fleming saw two young men rushing through the crowd, knocking people right and left, evidently for fun, and arrested them. They were messengers and gave the names of David Smith, aged nineteen, of No. 32 Madison street, Brooklyn, and Henry Bernadine, over 18, Brooklyn, as bail.

Flaming, agent twenty-four, of No. 125 Norfolk street. As Fleming started toward the station-house several friends of the prisoners rushed at him and did their best to break his hold on a prisoner.

Flaming shouted for help and several men of the Traffic squad ran up. One of the men, who was wearing a hat and a detective in plain clothes, brought the crowd of friends like a battering-ram. Daniel Goldblack, aged twenty, of No. 248 East One Hundred and thirty street, was arrested along with Fleming, and the officer, who Fleming alleged that he struck Fleming in the face. Several hundred men of the thousands who witnessed the scene followed the prisoners and the police.

Sam Mertes, of the Giants, witnessed the game with his canine toothless wonder "Happy." He said the Giants were confident of winning the championship and that Merty would likely pitch three times.
